

TELL ANNE OF GREEN GABLES, IN 500 WORDS OR LESS,
WHAT SHE MEANS TO YOU.

Dear Anne Shirley,

Anne, you mean a great deal to people all around the world, myself included. My grandparents went to Prince Edward Island, the most beautiful place in the world, about seven years ago. They went to visit your white and green gabled house. They bought me all eight of your books. Ever since then, you, Anne with an 'e', are a bosom friend.

100
YEARS OF ANNE

I am like you, Anne. I might have expected it. I am cursed with hair as red as carrots, and I used to have freckles. I have a temper which matches my carrot red hair. Anne, I do not like to believe that I have a temper, but I must admit that I do.

At the end of May, our school is performing the musical, "Anne of Green Gables." I am fortunate enough to be playing the role of Anne. I was extremely happy when I found out that I was to play you. The director told me that it was not just my splendid looks, but it was mostly my "Anne-ness" that has me playing your delightful character. I think that the musical will be scrumptious with some imagination.

Your story is a scrumptious and sympathetic one, and everyone can relate to it in some way. It is a splendid story, Anne, and I adore it. I think that people should be more like you. You find happiness in beautiful little things. Flowers, nature's beauty and landscapes are little things that delight your spirit. Belonging to a family is important to you. I absolutely love my family, because I belong. My wonderful parents mean the entire world to me, as caring Marilla and Mathew did to you. Anne, I love your way of life. Your life consisted of school, writing, reading and living life to the fullest. Our way of life is noticeably different and not many people have time for writing, or enjoying landscapes, which is disappointing.

I believe, Anne, that we could have been good friends, kindred spirits in fact. You have touched many lives, and many people have let you come walking into their lovely homes, such as your gabled home. Your story is prouly apart of our cozy home, and you have touched my life in a glorious way.

Anne, you touch heart-hungry people everywhere. It is no wonder that you have a well known story. Your radiant story of love, faith, hope and happiness have altered people's views and lives. Your imagination helped you through tragic and trying times, Anne. IF every single person used their own cheerful imagination when they happened to be in the depths of despair, imagine what the world could be like now. Imagine Anne, oh just imagine...

Yours Sincerely,

Hannah Tufts
